The graduating class of '83 probably has more scholars than any previous senior class at Santa Fe Indian School. We are showing that an all Indian school can compete with any other high school in the state when it comes to quality of scholarship, college entrance, and ambitions of graduates.

Marty, what's that you're doing?

Dancing up a storm.

Too much chocolate.

Messing Around

Come on, sweetie!

Serenading one another.

Chollita power.

Wow! What's that?

Mom looking for money.

Bag singers.

Congratulations from all of us!

SPECIAL PROGRAMS

Brave Spirit Band

The Music Makers Of S.F.I.S.

From left to right: Brave Spirit Band in Phoenix. Drummers take a break during band camp. Showing that they are the best, the drummers give it to the crowd. Entertaining the crowd, the Band does its best. Rocking to the beat, Mike rocks back. Getting a good start before band practice, Theresa and Coy have breakfast. Our Brave Leader! Marching in the State Fair Parade, the Brave Spirit Band took third place.

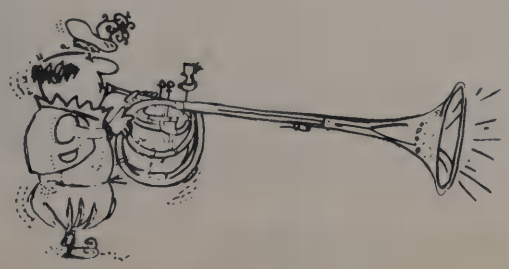
From left to right: Ms. McElwee and Mr. Villa give each other a hug for a job well done. Marching to another performance, Brave Spirit Band moves forward. Theresa, Miriam and Nettie do their best at S.I.P.I. Getting an award, Mike gives a big smile. All together!

The Brave Spirit Band is having its best year ever. 1982-83 started with band camp in August, where members got rigorous training at the hands of David Jesion and Steve Scharder from N.M.S.U., and Roland Villa. Then our band won third place in the State Fair Parade. They also went to Phoenix to play with the Phoenix Indian School Band. S.F.I.S. is proud of its band and of Roland Villa, who makes it all happen!



Spirit Of Art

Ray Miller, Director

Ray Darby, whose Kiowa name is Hunting Horse, is a fair promoter, record producer, musician, painter of Indian art, recording artist, and a writer. He performed for the Santa Fe Indian School Third Annual Back-to-School concert. Ray and Ella Darby and son are known as the Darby Affair. The Darby Affair did a great job in entertaining the students.

Nora Naranjo Morse is a Santa Clara potter. She does not make the traditional black pots, but clay figurines. Nora was at Santa Fe Indian School working with students in Native American Art classes. The photo on the left shows some of the work the students did. Nora also worked with staff and students in the drop-in art center.

The Louisiana four-man troupe Folk Puppet Theater performed five traditional folktales for Santa Fe Indian School students. After performing at twenty-four fairs in 1981 under the auspices of state grants, the company has begun its first year as an independent professional touring company. The puppeteers are Norman Marmillion (Director), Kathleen Bordelon, Steve Duplantier, Rick Shopfner, and Jean Duplantier.

Pablita Velarde is a Santa Clara Pueblo Indian and a very well known artist. Ms. Velarde attended Santa Fe Indian School. The students in Native American Art classes have learned about traditional Indian painting from this famous painter. Ms. Velarde's advice to young artists is that we look into our Indian heritage and gain a deeper understanding of who we are.

The Las Vegas Brass Quintet gave a highly enjoyable performance at S.F.I.S. The members are Walter J. Blanton, Thomas trumpet; trumpet; Gause, James Firkins, trombone; Garry Russell, tuba; and Kurt Snyder, French horn.

Ray Miller the Camera Man himself!

Some of the weavings done in Ms. Sunrise's classes.

Garrett is showing us how he weaves.

Pearl Sunrise is a Navajo who lives in Albuquerque and has taught at U.N.M. She is presently on the faculty at the World College in Montezuma, N.M. She is an internationally known artist who has traveled to Africa to demonstrate pottery, weaving and beading. Ms. Sunrise spent five weeks at S.F.I.S. as an Artist-in-residence, and taught weaving to many enthusiastic students.

Pearl Sunrise helps Kathy Mora.

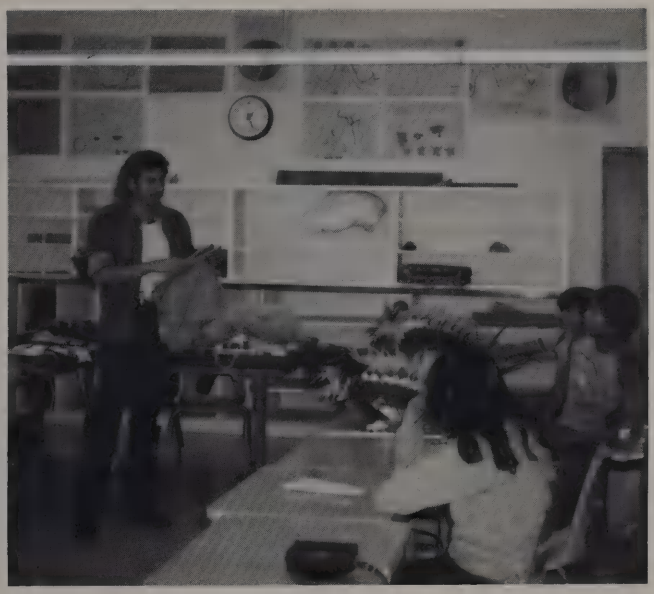
Lloyd shows us the ropes.

In November the Denver Center Theatre Company presented Moliere's comedy The Physician In Spite of of Himself at S.F.I.S. The Company is based at the Denver Center for the Performing Arts, and each year presents a varied season of live plays. This play was directed by Peter Hackett, and the cast included Joan St. Onge, Vince Zaffiro, Walter Schoen, Julian Gamble, Caitlin O'Connell, W. Francis Walters, Duane Black, Reno Goodale, and Stacy Rupp.

Charles Blake is a Mandan Indian and lives on the Mandan Reservation. His nickname is Charley Hard Horn, and he is a professional dancer. He has toured three years with the Lamanette troupe of dancers and actors. He does a show based upon Indian history through dance and music.

Charles spent five weeks at S.F.I.S. before Christmas, teaching students in Native American Art classes, and also gave a performance at the Christmas show.

Charles explains his dance costume to students.

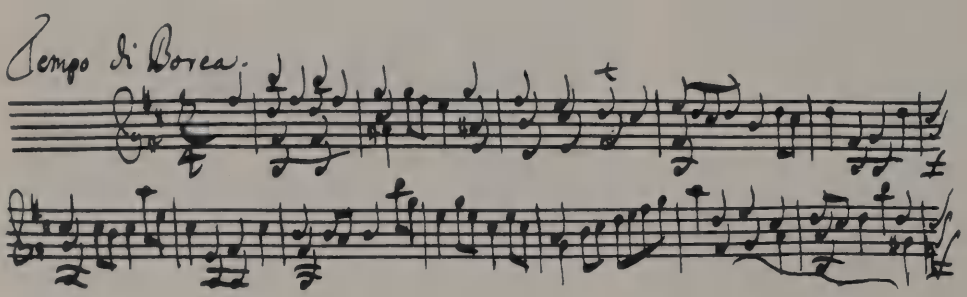


Feathers, feathers, feathers!

Teacher Fred and followers.

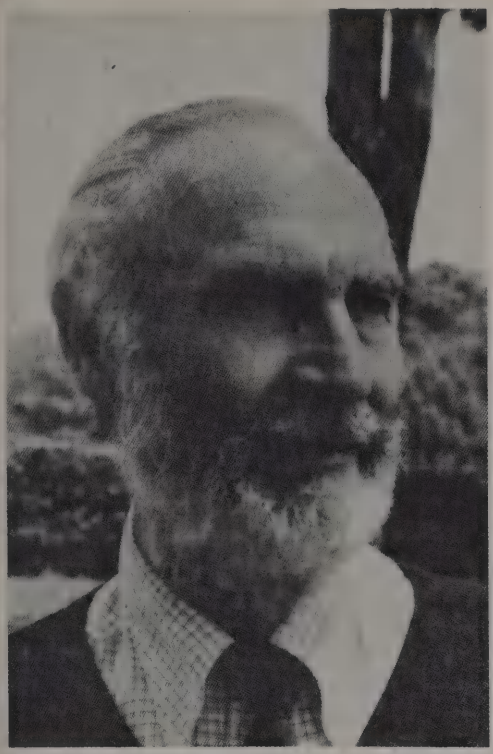
Our own dancer-in-residence and Mr. Blake in a duet.

Bluegrass Overdrive presented a concert at S.F.I.S. on March 9.



The Black Mesa Ensemble includes Lynn Case (violin), Laurel Rogers (cello), Peter Pesic (piano and harpsichord) and Robert Wingert (clarinet.)

The ensemble came to the school and put on a concert for us. Everyone enjoyed the concert and appreciated having them here at our school.

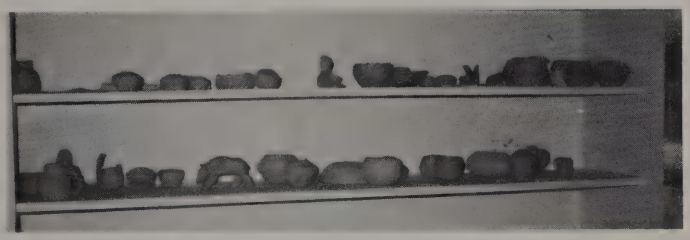


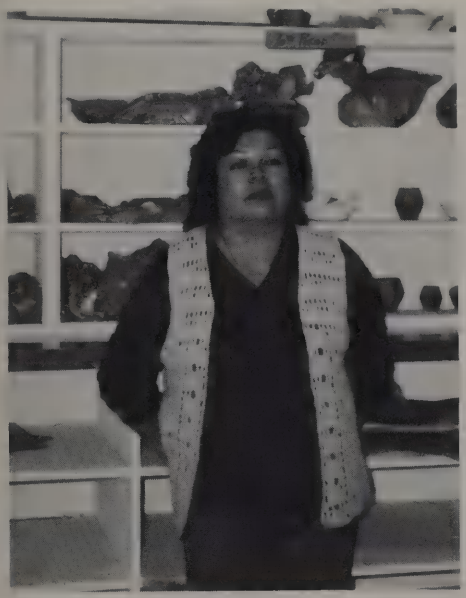
Arthur Luce Klein, president of Spoken Arts, Inc., is on a tour of schools and colleges both in America and abroad to present his one man show of lectures, informal storytelling, and dramatic monologues.

Dr. Klein has recently performed his 'Art of Storytelling' programs in London, Paris, and Switzerland, where elementary schools, high schools, and college audiences responded enthusiastically.

Klein also performs skits he has written himself. He presents an account of how storytelling began, then offers his own version of fairy tales in a style designed to educate and liberate the emotions of people.

Mr. Klein performed Anton Chekov's 'On the Harmfulness of Tobacco' for the Senior High and 'Art of Storytelling' for the Junior High.





Stella Shutiva is a potter from Acoma Pueblo who came and stayed several weeks. She taught the students how to make pottery and they enjoyed it very much.

Stella's pottery is consistently of award-winning quality. Her work is distinguished not only for fine quality but also for the design and the beautiful painting.

The Student Council has been actively using the last few weeks to increase the number of available activities for the students. Recently they announced the formation of the Brave Hound Travel Agency. Though the first trip to the zoo had to be cancelled, due to the sickness of the driver, the second trip to Coronado Shopping Center in Albuquerque went off smoothly. The next trip advertised is on December 4 to an Albuquerque roller rink, also in the planning stages are trips to see the Lobos play and to a local bowling alley. In Canteen news the Council sponsored a tournament night on November 16 which featured live music by T.D.K., a local rock group. The Council is currently negotiating for the purchase of a stereo system for the Canteen. They are also considering the purchase of a video disc player. The Council's expanded budget for this year is covering a wide variety of educational and recreation activities. They have approved grants for everything from tropical fish to calculators. Perhaps the most exciting plan in the works is the Council's plan to purchase an activity bus which could be used by all organizations at the school and painted with the school's emblem. The Council has their eye on a 1975 school bus complete with radio and a good heating system. The Council hopes to wind up the 1982 year by hosting the city wide officers' meeting and performing for children at St. Vincent Hospital.
